

Babe Ruth's RBI Record with the Boston Red Sox (1914-1919)

By Herm Krabbenhoft

Babe Ruth spent the first six seasons (1914-1919) of his major league baseball career with the Boston Red Sox. He was primarily a pitcher during the 1914-1917 seasons. Because of his phenomenal batting and slugging skills, he played most of his games as regular outfielder during the 1918 and 1919 seasons.

Runs Batted In did not become an official statistic [i.e., recorded on the official day-by-day (DBD) ledgers] until the 1920 season. Therefore, there are no "official" records for the RBIs that Ruth achieved during his tenure with the Boston Red Sox. However, RBIs were recorded "unofficially" by Ernie Lanigan of The Sporting News from 1907 through 1919. Accordingly, in the first (1934) edition of "Daguerreotypes" Ruth is shown with the following RBI record for 1914-1919:¹

1914 – 0 RBIs
1915 – 20 RBIs
1916 – 16 RBIs
1917 – 10 RBIs
1918 – 64 RBIs
1919 – 112 RBIs

Total – 222 RBIs

However, over the years other numbers for Ruth's RBIs have appeared in different publications or on Internet websites. I have not seen any explanation or justification for the changes. Here is a chart listing the minimum and maximum numbers of RBIs for Ruth that have been reported; also included are the RBI numbers currently (September 24, 2012) shown on the official website of Major League Baseball (MLB.com):

Babe Ruth's RBI Record (1914-1919)

Year	RBIs Fewest	RBIs Most	RBIs MLB.com
1914	0	2	2
1915	20	21	21
1916	15	16	15
1917	10	12	12
1918	64	66	66
1919	112	114	114
Total	221	231	230

To my knowledge, when I initiated my research effort (in the Spring-2012), there was no presentation of Ruth's RBI record on a day-by-day (game-by-game) basis for his 1914-1919 seasons. However, at that time, Retrosheet did present an incomplete daily (game-by-game) record for Ruth's 1918 and 1919 seasons. Upon completion of my research, I provided my comprehensive RBI information to Retrosheet. Working closely with Dave Smith and especially Tom Ruane, we were able to resolve a few differences between our two independent efforts such that accurate RBI statistics for Ruth's 1916-1919 seasons were achieved and presented in Retrosheet's daily record for Ruth (which was released on the Retrosheet website in the Summer-2012). In companion articles, I provide the comprehensive documentation that I assembled to ascertain the complete RBI record for Babe Ruth's 1914-1919 seasons.²⁻⁷ I also made a research presentation on Babe Ruth's RBI Record at the 2012 Retrosheet Board Meeting during the SABR-42 Convention in Minneapolis.⁸

Here, then – according to my research – is the RBI record for Babe Ruth's tenure with the Boston Red Sox (1914-1919):

1914 – 0 RBIs
1915 – 20 RBIs
1916 – 16 RBIs (Retrosheet concurs)
1917 – 14 RBIs (Retrosheet concurs)
1918 – 61 RBIs (Retrosheet concurs)
1919 – 113 RBIs (Retrosheet concurs)

Total – 224 RBIs

Again, complete evidence in support of these RBI numbers is provided in the companion articles.²⁻⁷

It is anticipated (by me) that Retrosheet, after reviewing my research for Ruth's 1914 and 1915 seasons,^{2,3} will concur with my conclusions and include the information on Ruth's daily pages for these seasons when they are released on the Retrosheet website.

Conclusion

According to my research, Babe Ruth achieved a total of 224 RBIs during his six seasons with the Boston Red Sox. During the four seasons in which he was primarily a pitcher (1914, 1915, 1916, and 1917), he accumulated 0, 20, 16, and 14 RBIs, respectively. For the two seasons in which he was primarily an outfielder (1918 and 1919), he amassed 66 and 113 RBIs, respectively. In the 1919 season, The Bambino led the American League in most runs batted in with 113 RBIs.

Acknowledgment

It is a pleasure to thank the following individuals for their outstanding help and cooperation in my quest to ascertain the accurate RBI Record for Babe Ruth's 1914-1919 seasons: Steve Boren, Keith Carlson, Tom Ruane, Dave Smith, Gary Stone, Rich Topp, Dixie Tourangeau, and Walt Wilson.

Babe Ruth's RBI Record – 1914

By Herm Krabbenhoft

According to the official baseball records, Babe Ruth played in a total of 5 games for the Boston Red Sox in the 1914 American League season. Runs batted in were not recorded in the official baseball records in 1914. Depending on where one looks, one can find that Ruth is credited with either 0 RBIs or 2 RBIs for his 1914 statistical record. To my knowledge, there has not been a presentation which provides a game-by-game accounting of the RBIs credited to Ruth for his 1914 season. Therefore, I initiated a research program to ascertain the RBIs that Babe Ruth actually achieved in 1914. In this report, I present the results of my research which show that Ruth actually batted in a total of 0 runs in 1914.

R/RBI Details – Boston Red Sox – 1914 – Games in which Babe Ruth played

Presented here are the details for each run scored by the Boston Red Sox in each of the 5 games that Babe Ruth played in the 1914 season. The details were obtained from the accounts in the three major daily newspapers published in Boston – the Globe, the Herald, and the Post – and at least one major daily newspaper from the city of the team that opposed the Red Sox. The details for each run include: (a) the inning the run was scored; (b) the identity of the player who scored the run; (c) the run-scoring event; and (d) the identity of the batter who completed his plate appearance during the run-scoring event.

July 11 – Boston vs. Cleveland – Boston scored 4 runs

1 (first inning) – Speaker scored on a 1-RBI triple by Gardner.

2 (fourth inning) – Gardner scored (from third base) on a 2-out fielding error (wild throw) by the catcher during the stealing of second base by the runner (Yerkes) on first base.

3 (fourth inning) – Yerkes scored on a 1-RBI single by Carrigan.

4 (seventh inning) – Scott scored on a 1-RBI single by Speaker.

July 16 – Boston vs. Detroit – Boston scored 2 runs

1 (seventh inning) – Speaker scored on a 1-RBI single by Janvrin.

2 (seventh inning) – Gardner scored on a 1-RBI double by Yerkes.

Babe Ruth's RBI Record – 1915

By Herm Krabbenhoft

According to the official baseball records, Babe Ruth played in a total of 42 games for the Boston Red Sox in the 1915 American League season. Runs batted in were not recorded in the official baseball records in 1915. Depending on where one looks, one can find that Ruth is credited with either 20 RBIs or 21 RBIs for his 1915 statistical record. To my knowledge, there has not been a presentation which provides a game-by-game accounting of the RBIs credited to Ruth for his 1915 season. Therefore, I initiated a research program to ascertain the RBIs that Babe Ruth actually achieved in 1915. In this report, I present the results of my research which show that Ruth actually batted in a total of 20 runs in 1915.

5 (fifth inning) – Lewis scored the run according to the information in the boxscores (i.e., the text accounts provided details for all of the Boston runs except the run scored in the fifth inning). With regard to how the fifth-inning run was scored, none of the newspaper accounts (BG-BH-BP-SLGD-SLPD-SLST) provide any information. Thus, it is not known if anyone batted in Lewis or if Lewis scored without being batted in. However, the newspaper accounts do state that Ruth was knocked out of the game in the third inning – he was relieved by Mays with one out in the third inning. Thus, if Lewis was batted in by a teammate in the fifth inning, he was not batted in by Ruth.

6 (eighth inning) – Gregg scored on a 2-RBI triple by Barry.

7 (eighth inning) – Hooper scored on a 2-RBI triple by Barry.

8 (eighth inning) – Barry scored on a 1-RBI fielder's-choice-force-out by Lewis.

7 (eighth inning) – Ruth scored on a 1-RBI double by Scott.

September 14 – Boston vs. Chicago – Boston scored 2 runs [see also verbatim text accounts below – BG (T.H. Murnane); BH (no by-line); BP (Paul H. Shannon)]

1 (seventh inning) – Janvrin scored (from third base) on a 2-out fielding error (dropped ball) by the first baseman; Henriksen was the batter.

2 (seventh inning) – Wood scored on a 1-RBI double by RUTH.

BG – “The Boston Red Sox made it four straight yesterday from Chicago, winning by 2 to 1, although the score stood 1 to 0 against Boston up to the seventh inning. In that session, with two down, the visitors made three miscues and Babe Ruth smashed the ball against the left-field fence, sending home the winning run.”

BG – “The Red Sox ran into some good luck in the seventh. With two down, Wagner made two bases when [first baseman] John Collins failed to hold a high throw by Blackburne. Henriksen, batting for Thomas, was safe when Collins made his second muff on a fast throw by [pitcher] Benz, close to the runner. Henriksen was slightly injured in the collision at first and allowed Joe Wood to run for him, Janvrin taking Wagner’s place at second base. Ruth then delivered his blow that made the necessary two runs, sending a fine double to the left field bank, scoring Janvrin and Wood. Gainer was thrown out at first.”

BH – “He [Chicago pitcher Benz] went along for six rounds allowing but two hits, only to have Shano Collins, the outstanding first baseman, make a couple of muffs that turned the game over to the Carrigans. Two errors by the former Newton lad came at a time that helped materially and gave Ruth the opportunity to drive out his two-base bang which shot over Joe Wood, who had replace Pinch Hitter Olaf Henriksen as a base runner, with the winning run.”

BH – “It was in Boston’s half [of the seventh] that the White Sox cracked. [Center fielder] Jackson made a wonderful catch off Gardner. Lewis fouled to [catcher] Schalk. Wagner was safe when J. Collins dropped Blackburne’s somewhat high throw and made second base. Janvrin replaced Wagner. Henriksen, who had gone to bat for Thomas, sent a roller down the pitcher’s path. Benz raced in, and chucked to J. Collins. The ball hit Henriksen on the left wrist and J. Collins dropped the ball, Janvrin scoring the tying run. Joe Wood relieved Henriksen as a base runner. With the outfielders all playing over toward right, Ruth drove the ball down inside the left field foul line for two bases, scoring Wood. Ruth pulled up at third after the relay in had failed to stop the winning run. Hoblitzel went to bat. He had one ball on him when Russell was sent to the mound. Manager Carrigan yanked Hoblitzel and sent Gainer to bat. Del was thrown out on a close play by E. Collins.”

BP – “He [Babe Ruth] didn’t put the sphere out of bounds in this hard-fought battle but he led his team in the batting line and his double in the seventh when he drove over the run that put Boston in the lead and spelled victory incidentally only added to the reputation that the big youngster has already established.”

BP – “When the Red Sox went to bat in the eventful seventh and the first two men went out, hope was nearly dead in the breasts of the Boston fans. However there was still Wagner to come up. The veteran hit a steamy one to short and Shano Collins dropped the perfect throw. Before it [the ball] was recovered, Heinie was anchored on second base. Manager Carrigan sent Olaf Henriksen in to hit for Thomas and put Janvrin in to run for Wagner. A passed ball let Janvrin reach third and then Henriksen hit a slow grounder to Benz that the latter fielded perfectly and yet had to hurry in making the throw to first. The peg was perfect, but as Henriksen was tearing down the line like a house afire, Collins once more became rattled, the ball dropping from his clutches, and Janvrin had scored with the run that tied the game up. Here Wood was put in to run for Henriksen who hurt himself in the collision at first, and it was Ruth who put the game on ice with a two-bagger to the score board.”

- 2 (fifth inning) – Hooper scored on a 2-RBI single by Scott or Hooper scored on a 1-RBI single by Scott.
- 3 (sixth inning) – Shorten scored on a 1-RBI sacrifice fly by Gardner.

BG – “Boston tied the score in the fifth. With one down, Cady singled. Shore flied to center. Hooper hit for two bases, and both men scored on a single by Scott, who was thrown out trying for second.”

BH – “It was not until the fifth that the Sox got to Dumont for enough runs to tie the score. With one out Cady singled, but Shore flied out. Dumont had two strikes and three balls on Hooper when the latter drove a double to right center scoring Cady. Scott then singled and brought Hooper home.”

BP – Nothing at all.

October 06 (second game) – Boston at New York – Boston scored 4 runs

- 1 (sixth inning) – Ruth scored on a 1-RBI double by Speaker.

Babe Ruth's RBI Record – 1916

By Herm Krabbenhoft

According to the official baseball records, Babe Ruth played in a total of 67 games for the Boston Red Sox in the 1916 American League season. [However, the official (Day-by-Day) records do not show Ruth playing in the game on August 01 (in which he appeared as a pinch hitter in an inning in which the Red Sox did not score). Thus, Ruth actually played in 68 games in the 1916 season.] Runs batted in were not recorded in the official baseball records in 1916. Depending on where one looks, one can find that Ruth is credited with either 15 RBIs or 16 RBIs for his 1916 statistical record. To my knowledge, there has not been a presentation which provides a game-by-game accounting of the RBIs credited to Ruth for his 1916 season. Therefore, I initiated a research program to ascertain the RBIs that Babe Ruth actually achieved in 1916. In this report, I present the results of my research which show that Ruth actually batted in a total of 16 runs in 1916.

R/RBI Details – Boston Red Sox – 1916 – Games in which Babe Ruth played

Presented here are the details for each run scored by the Boston Red Sox in each of the 68 games that Babe Ruth played in the 1916 season. The details were obtained from the accounts in the three major daily newspapers published in Boston – the Globe, the Herald, and the Post – and at least one major daily newspaper from the city of the team that opposed the Red Sox. The details for each run include: (a) the inning the run was scored; (b) the identity of the player who scored the run; (c) the run-scoring event; and (d) the identity of the batter who completed his plate appearance during the run-scoring event.

NOTE: None of the accounts in the Boston newspapers (the Globe, the Herald, the Post) and in the Philadelphia Inquirer provided any significant information about the runs scored by the Red Sox. It is pointed out that Ruth was in the game for only 5 innings. Thus, the only Boston run with which he could have been involved was the fifth-inning run. The only information provided in the newspaper accounts about Boston's fifth-inning run is the following:

BG – “The Red Sox made a little headway on three hits against Myers in the fifth.”

BH – “It was not until the fifth that the champions scored, when three hits in a row shot a run over.”

BP – Nothing at all

PINQ – Nothing at all.

For the sixth-inning run, here's the only information provided:

BG – “... two hits against Nabors in the sixth.”

BH – “A pair of hits and a fielder's choice gave the Sox their second run in the sixth.”

BP – Nothing at all.

PINQ – Nothing at all.

Here is the batting lineup for Boston:

Hooper [2 ab]

Henriksen [2 ab]

Janvrin [3 ab + 1 sh]

Pennock [PH in 9th; 1 ab]

Walker [2 ab]

Shorten [2 ab]

Hoblitzel [2 ab]

Gainer [2 ab]

Lewis [4 ab]

Gardner [2 ab]
Walsh [1 ab]

Scott [2 ab]
McNally [1 ab + 1 sh]

Thomas [2 ab]
Agnew [2 ab]

Ruth [2 ab]
Wyckoff [1 ab]
Cady [PH in 9th; 1 ab]

Examination of the newspaper boxscores reveals the following:

- * Ruth is shown with no runs scored and no hits in 2 at bats.
- * There are two groups of Red Sox players – (1) those who started the game and (2) those who replaced the starters.
- * Since 3 of the runs were scored by the substitute players, it can be reasonably deduced that those runs were scored in the ninth inning – the ninth-inning run-scorers were Shorten, Gainer, and Walsh.
- * Thus, the runs scored in the fifth and sixth innings were scored by Lewis and Gardner (or Gardner and Lewis).
- * Since the Athletics pitchers issued 2 walks, it can be deduced that the 2 walks were issued as follows: 1 walk to the Hooper-Henriksen pair (batting slot # 1); 1 walk to the Gardner-Walsh pair (batting slot # 6).
- * It is readily deduced that Pennock made the final out of the game.
- * In order for Lewis to have scored the fifth-inning run, he had to be first batter among Lewis, Gardner, and Scott to have singled in succession. The boxscore shows that Lewis, Gardner, and Scott each collected a base hit.
- * In order for Gardner to have scored the fifth-inning run, he had to be the first batter among Gardner, Scott, and Thomas to have singled in succession. The boxscore shows that Gardner, Scott, and Thomas each collected a base hit.
- * Since the base hit information does not eliminate a possibility, it cannot be reliably deduced who (Lewis or Gardner) scored the fifth-inning run.

Considering all of the available information, it seems likely that the fifth-inning run, if scored by Lewis, was batted in by Scott; alternatively, if the fifth-inning run was scored by Gardner, it was batted in by Thomas.

Thus, in the absence of other information, I conclude that Babe Ruth did not bat in any runs in this game. Furthermore, there is no evidence that suggests that Babe Ruth did bat in any runs in this game.

➔ Babe Ruth had 16 RBIs in 1916. As of September 24, 2012, this is in agreement with the RBI statistics provided in the 1916 Retrosheet boxscore file and Retrosheet's "player daily" file for Babe Ruth. However, Retrosheet's "player page" for Babe Ruth shows 15 RBIs for Babe Ruth in the 1916 season.

Babe Ruth's RBI Record – 1917

By Herm Krabbenhoft

According to the official baseball records, Babe Ruth played in a total of 52 games for the Boston Red Sox in the 1917 American League season. Runs batted in were not recorded in the official baseball records in 1917. Depending on where one looks, one can find that Ruth is credited with either 10 RBIs or 12 RBIs for his 1917 statistical record. To my knowledge, there has not been a presentation which provides a game-by-game accounting of the RBIs credited to Ruth for his 1917 season. Therefore, I initiated a research program to ascertain the RBIs that Babe Ruth actually achieved in 1917. In this report, I present the results of my research which show that Ruth actually batted in a total of 14 runs in 1917.

R/RBI Details – Boston Red Sox – 1917 – Games in which Babe Ruth played

Presented here are the details for each run scored by the Boston Red Sox in each of the 52 games that Babe Ruth played in the 1917 season. The details were obtained from the accounts in the three major daily newspapers published in Boston – the Globe, the Herald, and the Post – and at least one major daily newspaper from the city of the team that opposed the Red Sox. The details for each run include: (a) the inning the run was scored; (b) the identity of the player who scored the run; (c) the run-scoring event; and (d) the identity of the batter who completed his plate appearance during the run-scoring event.

➔ Babe Ruth had 14 RBIs in 1917. As of September 24, 2012, this is in agreement with the RBI statistics provided in the 1917 Retrosheet boxscore file and Retrosheet's "player daily" file for Babe Ruth. However, Retrosheet's "player page" for Babe Ruth shows 12 RBIs for Babe Ruth in the 1917 season.

Appendix One – Complete R/RBI information for the first game on June 13 – Boston vs. St. Louis

June 13 (first game) – Boston vs. St. Louis – Boston scored 2 runs

Second Inning – Boston scored 1 run

BH – “Gardner led off the second with a safe hit to centre and advanced to second on Scott’s sacrifice, Sisler to Pratt. [No mention of Thomas being safe on a fielder’s choice with Gardner moving to third – see BP description.] Ruth hit to [second baseman] Pratt, whose throw was muffed by [shortstop] Johnson and Gardner scored. Hooper hit to Sisler and Ruth was forced at second. Hooper stole second and Barry closed the inning by flying to Miller.”

BP – “Gardner’s beautiful line single opened Boston’s second and Scott sacrificed nicely. Davenport fielded Thomas’ boulder to third just too late to get Gardner and both men were safe. Ruth hit to Pratt and the latter pegged to Johnson for an easy double play but the latter muffed, everybody was safe, and Gardner scored. Hooper forced Ruth at second and then stole. Both [Thomas and Hooper] were left.”

SLGD – “Gardner began this with a single and Scott sacrificed him to second. Thomas tapped to Davenport and the latter tried for Gardner at third, but was too late. Ruth grounded to Pratt, who threw to second only to have Johnson drop the ball and the runners were safe while Gardner scored.”

Eighth Inning – Boston scored 1 run

BH – “Hamilton, who had replaced Davenport, passed Barry, who advanced to second on Hobby’s sacrifice. Hamilton made Walker appear like a most dangerous customer when he passed Tillie, but the boomerang that hit the Brown southpaw came later when Larry Gardner whacked a slashing single to left, scoring Barry. On Shotten’s error Walker went to third and Gardner to second, but Scott ended the rally by a fly to Shotten.”

BP – “For he [Hamilton] walked Barry, first man up, Hobbie sacrificed, and after Lewis had popped up Walker was purposely passed to get Gardner who singled to left, scored Barry and sent Walker to third where he stayed.”

SLGD – “Barry walked and Hoblitzel sacrificed. Lewis flied to Shotton and Walker was given a pass. Gardner’s single scored Barry.”

Babe Ruth’s RBI Record – 1918

By Herm Krabbenhoft

According to the official baseball records, Babe Ruth played in a total of 95 games for the Boston Red Sox in the 1918 American League season. Runs batted in were not recorded in the official baseball records in 1918. Depending on where one looks, one can find that Ruth is credited with either 64 RBIs or 66 RBIs for his 1918 statistical record. To my knowledge, the only presentation which provides a game-by-game accounting of the RBIs credited to Ruth for his 1918 season is Babe Ruth’s 1918 “Daily page” on the Retrosheet website. I initiated a research program to independently ascertain the RBIs that Babe Ruth actually achieved in 1918. In this report, I present the results of my research which show that Ruth actually batted in a total of 61 runs in 1918.

R/RBI Details – Boston Red Sox – 1918 – Games in which Babe Ruth played

Presented here are the details for each run scored by the Boston Red Sox in each of the 95 games that Babe Ruth played in the 1918 season. The details were obtained from the accounts in the three major daily newspapers published in Boston – the Globe, the Herald, and the Post – and at least one major daily newspaper from the city of the team that opposed the Red Sox. The details for each run include: (a) the inning the run was scored; (b) the identity of the player who scored the run; (c) the run-scoring event; and (d) the identity of the batter who completed his plate appearance during the run-scoring event.

➔ Babe Ruth had 61 RBIs in 1918. As of September 24, 2012, this is in agreement with the RBI statistics provided in the 1918 Retrosheet boxscore file and Retrosheet's "player daily" file for Babe Ruth. However, Retrosheet's "player page" for Babe Ruth shows 66 RBIs for Babe Ruth in the 1918 season.

With regard to Babe Ruth's "1918 daily page" on the Retrosheet website, summing the RBIs for each of the 95 games played by Babe Ruth yields a total of 61 RBIs – i.e., in complete agreement with the RBI information I obtained independently and described in this report.

Babe Ruth's RBI Record – 1919

By Herm Krabbenhoft

According to the official baseball records, Babe Ruth played in a total of 130 games for the Boston Red Sox in the 1919 American League season. Runs batted in were not recorded in the official baseball records in 1919. Depending on where one looks, one can find that Ruth is credited with either 112 RBIs or 114 RBIs for his 1919 statistical record. To my knowledge, the only presentation which provides a game-by-game accounting of the RBIs credited to Ruth for his 1919 season is Babe Ruth's 1919 "Daily page" on the Retrosheet website. I initiated a research program to independently ascertain the RBIs that Babe Ruth actually achieved in 1919. In this report, I present the results of my research which show that Ruth actually batted in a total of 113 runs in 1919.

R/RBI Details – Boston Red Sox – 1919 – Games in which Babe Ruth played

Presented here are the details for each run scored by the Boston Red Sox in each of the 130 games that Babe Ruth played in the 1919 season. The details were obtained from the accounts in the three major daily newspapers published in Boston – the Globe, the Herald, and the Post – and at least one major daily newspaper from the city of the team that opposed the Red Sox. The details for each run include: (a) the inning the run was scored; (b) the identity of the player who scored the run; (c) the run-scoring event; and (d) the identity of the batter who completed his plate appearance during the run-scoring event.

➔ Babe Ruth had 113 RBIs in 1919. As of September 24, 2012, this is in agreement with the RBI statistics provided in the 1919 Retrosheet boxscore file and Retrosheet's "player daily" file for Babe Ruth. However, Retrosheet's "player page" for Babe Ruth shows 114 RBIs for Babe Ruth in the 1919 season.

With regard to Babe Ruth's "1919 daily page" on the Retrosheet website, summing the RBIs for each of the 130 games that Ruth played yields a total of 113 RBIs – i.e., complete agreement with the RBI information I obtained independently and described in this report.
